The commercialisation of innovation is critical to the continued prosperity of Melbourne. Melbourne does not lack for ideas, scientific discovery and creativity. In order to capture the potential of those ideas, the City of Melbourne supports the creation of innovative new business through programs that assist commercialisation of innovation in emerging industries and sectors.

The City of Melbourne is committed to ensuring business development, job growth and enhancement of business infrastructure in Melbourne. In partnership with business and all levels of government, Council promotes the development of Melbourne as a smart, creative and progressive global City.

AusIndustry is the Federal Government's delivery agency for business assistance and information services. AusIndustry was established to encourage innovation, and provides grants, loans and a tax concession to encourage research and development and the early commercialisation of R&D.

In addition, AusIndustry offers access to venture capital for early stage technology companies and assistance to become venture capital ready.
